

Education Activities

NatureWest is heavily involved in community and school-based education in the region. As part of its Landcare duties, one of our facilitators is designing a suite of teaching kits aimed at all Primary School years, which will be rolled out around Australia as part of Junior Landcare.

There is always an emphasis on community education, even at our working bees. All on-ground events include an element of education about biodiversity, and the reasons we are doing what we are doing. We run a series of formal community education sessions each year on various environmental topics. Also, each year we exhibit at a wide range of community festival and fairs to promote the organisation and its aims.

If you are interested in joining NatureWest activities, please contact the President, Bruce Boddington on 9394 8385. Or join our Facebook group to keep up to date with our program. We welcome volunteers from all walks of life, and have a range of activities and duties to suit everyone interested in nature and protecting our environment.
